Johnsonite Announces How-To Videos for Installation and Maintenance on Johnsonite.com

The Ogden Resource Center (ORC), built in 2003, serves as Washington State's instructional resource center for blind and visually impaired children. Its purpose is to distribute learning material to school districts across the state for those students who do not attend the Washington State School for the Blind (WSSB). ORC also houses the Braille Access Center. It produces Braille and large print books as well as other material for WSSB and the community at large.

When ORC was built, the goal was to seek more than improved energy efficiency. The center also hoped to incorporate as many sustainable elements into the facility as possible.
