Testing Procedure

According to a Tandus spokesperson, the products are put through a variety of tests — some considered the most stringent in the industry — to evaluate their performance, effectiveness, and if they are environmentally preferable.

The tests found the Tornado products to be either the best or second best product ever tested in their respective categories.

"As proud as we are about the test results and designation, the real winner here is the cleaning professional and the consumer," says Jim Hlavin, head of Tornado's Business Development department. "More efficient cleaning equipment helps make cleaning workers more productive and helps protect the health of building occupants and our environment."
