Find the Weakest Link

February 26, 2007

Direct from U.S. Products:

Cleaning equipment, just like everything else, is only as good as its weakest component. And that's certainly true of hot-water extractors.

Many powerful machines lose their efficiency—reducing water recovery and worker productivity—because of the wand they use. U.S. Products has changed all that with its new Evolution carpet wand.

The Evolution takes the turbulence out of airflow and replaces it with laminar flow. This redesign doubles the amount of airflow, dramatically improving water recovery and worker productivity.

About U.S. Products
